Delhi Skill and Entrepreneurship University got its First Vice Chancellor appointed, first academic session may start next year

The Delhi Skill and Entrepreneurship University's first academic session is expected to start next year in close consultation with companies, who will be treated as "customers" in this endeavor so that courses are in tune with industry demand, Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal said on 12th Oct in an online press conference.

"The Delhi Skill and Entrepreneurship University has been established through an Act of the Delhi Legislative Assembly. I am glad to announce that the university has started functioning today. The first board meeting of this university was held today," the chief minister said at an online press conference.

The government has appointed Dr. Neharika Vohra, the head of the Centre for Innovation Incubation and Entrepreneurship (CIIE) at IIM-Ahmedabad, as the vice-chancellor.

Deputy Chief Minister Manish Sisodia, who holds the education portfolio, said, "The university will have a focus on quality and quantity – provide high-quality courses in the entire spectrum of skills training from traditional skills to those of the future and ensuring that the intake of students is large enough to cater to the existing demand."
